

The Bartimaeus Institute 2010 in the central coast village of Oak View, CA

January 18-22, 2010

"Ambassadors of Reconciliation":
A New Testament Theology and Diverse Christian Practices of Restorative Justice and Peacemaking

with Elaine Enns and Ched Myers and special guests Nelson and Joyce Johnson (left) of the Beloved Community Center, Greensboro, NC

The Institute offers intensive study of scripture and social justice. Elaine and Ched will work from their new Orbis books, providing biblical reflections, analytical models and contemporary examples. The Johnsons will share their experience with the Greensboro Truth and Community Reconciliation Project. We will relate these themes to the legacy of the Civil Rights movement, and commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the Feb 1st, 1960 Greensboro Sit-Ins (pictured at right).

The Institute runs from Monday 5:00 pm thru Friday noon. Registration: Commuter Fee: $400; residential: $575 (double occupancy), $685 (single occupancy). Academic credit and limited scholarships are available. Space is limited to 30 per Institute. Register thru our website or contact us at: inquiries@bcm-net.org or 323-449-5170.

"Enns and Myers' full-spectrum peacemaking provides an intuitive and practical framework for understanding how the work fits together and the place that different approaches have within it... They have listened to, learned from, and offer us voices of those who have directly experienced the harms of violence and oppression and those who are actively working to address these harms." --Howard Zehr, Prof. of Restorative Justice, Eastern Mennonite University, VA.
