

Update November 20, 2023

November 4, 2023

Attend the National March on Washington D.C. this Sat., Nov. 4th

Meet at 2pm at Freedom Plaza in DC.

There's an 11am MARC train from Penn Station (the next train doesn't leave until 2pm).

Come early to gather with other Baltimoreans headed to the action together.

At 11am David and Ed joined hundreds and hundreds from Baltimore heading for the march. The train pulled many extra cars and there was standing room only as we stood or sat packed as sardines.

The march had more participants than the March for Jobs and Freedom on August 28, 1963. Since the march remained in the international news for several days, I postulate all those who have time and interest enough to read my updates know the events.

My joy to be there again in such a successful march continues to nourish my soul.

David and I got back to Penn Station after 9:30pm after walking 4 ½ miles that day-

Thank you, please advocate for a cease fire now and a two state solution.
